

Protecting children.
Strengthening families.

The Allegheny County DHS Office of Children, Youth and Families (CYF) is required by law to:

- prevent child abuse, neglect and exploitation;
- preserve families whenever possible; and
- provide a safe and loving permanent home for children, either by assuring safety within the child's own family or by finding another permanent setting for children who cannot be safely reunified with their family.

To report child abuse or neglect everyone is encouraged to call 412-473-2000 or 1-800-932-0313 if you are concerned about the well-being of a person under the age of 18 years.

These numbers answer 24 hours a day, 7 days a week.

DHS is responsible for providing and administering publicly funded human services to Allegheny County residents.

DHS Principles

All services will be:

- High quality, comprehensive and accessible.
- Individualized and designed to be respectful of the unique cultural characteristics of each individual and/or community.
- Integrated and offered through a team approach that recognizes the capacity of individuals and families to identify their own strengths, needs and goals; create relationships and natural supports; and take steps necessary to accomplish these goals.

Supporting Families

The Department of Human Services provides services intended to reduce stressors that may lead to child abuse and neglect including:

- neighborhood family support centers
- after-school and summer programs
- parenting support for moms and dads
- job readiness and training services
- basics of living – food, education and shelter
- services related to mental health and substance abuse

Allegations of Child Maltreatment

All reports to CYF alleging child maltreatment are investigated. If the allegation includes bodily injury, sexual abuse, serious neglect, or serious mental injury, CYF will conduct a Child Protective Services (CPS) investigation. If the allegation indicates a lesser level of neglect, injury, truancy or related issues, a General Protective Services (GPS) assessment is conducted. Both involve interviewing family members and others to determine:

- if /what maltreatment occurred;
- if the children are safe;
- if any child is at risk in the household and
- if formal child welfare services should be offered to the family.

If no maltreatment occurred but the family expresses a need for services, CYF will refer them to community supports and resources.

If Maltreatment is Indicated

Family services

Through Conferencing and Teaming, parents, members of the extended families, close friends, and professionals develop and implement a workable family plan to strength family functioning and address child safety.

Out-of-Home Placement

If a judge determines that children need to be removed from the home and live elsewhere while their parents work to improve the home environment, they will be placed in one of the following forms of out-of-home temporary care:

- Kinship Foster Care is the preferred option as it places the child (or sibling group) with kin or close friends.
- Family Foster Care is available when no qualifying kin are available. Foster care is provided by an appropriate family that has been licensed by the state.
- Treatment Foster Care is used for children who have exceptional behavioral health or other clinical needs.
- Group care, also known as "congregate care" is a placement in a non-family, residential group setting.
- Residential care provides additional supports on a residential campus to children, youth and young adults whose special needs require specialized care.
- Supervised Independent Living gives older youth the opportunity to live in an apartment with other youth as they receive services to prepare them for adulthood.

A Permanent Home

If a child has been removed due to safety reasons, CYF helps the family access the services or supports identified in the family plan as being necessary for the reunification of the family.

A judge in Children's Court reviews the progress made toward completing the family plan. S/he decides if the parents are making the necessary changes to create a safe home for their children.

Permanency options

The child's permanent home is chosen by a judge, based on the best interest of the child after hearing all recommendations made in court.

The permanency options in order of desirability are:

- Family Reunification - returning the children to a safe environment with their birth parent(s).
- Adoption - when a judge decides that a child cannot be safely reunited with his/her birth family and parental rights are terminated.
- Permanent Legal Custodianship - when a (usually kin) foster family accepts legal responsibility for the child but the birth parents still have certain parental rights.
- Permanent Placement with a Fit and Willing Relative - when relatives are committed to long-term care but will not adopt or become legal custodians.

Independent Living Programs

Young adults who were or are in foster care for at least 30 days after their 16th birthday are eligible to utilize a variety of programs to help them successfully transition into adulthood. Depending on an assessment of need, young adults can take advantage of services related to education, housing, employment and life skills until the age of 21.
