Drug and Alcohol Treatment Services

A variety of community-based drug and alcohol out-patient treatment, residential and hospital- and nonhospital-based services are available to eligible Allegheny County residents. These services include, but are not limited to: screening and assessment, specialized professional medical consultation, physical examinations, psychiatric evaluations, lab tests (such as HIV and TB testing), treatment planning, methadone maintenance, therapy (individual, group and family) and aftercare planning and follow-up.

Some programs are specifically designed for women*, women with children, pregnant women, pregnant women with children, intravenous drug users, members of the LGBTQ2SI community, individuals with HIV, and adolescents. Providers serving priority populations offer immediate assessment and admission to treatment in the following order: pregnant injection-drug users, pregnant substance abusers, injection-drug users, then all others.

 Providers that serve women provide preference to pregnant women.*

Outpatient Treatment Services

A variety of community-based drug and alcohol out-patient treatment services such as partial hospital-based services (a minimum of 10 hours of treatment a week over the course of at least three days), intensive out-patient services (five to nine-and-one-half hours of treatment a week) and out-patient services (one to four-and-one-half hours of treatment a week) are available.

Clients at these levels of treatment will receive additional assistance in accessing services for vocational assessment, job readiness and placement, GED preparation and testing, literacy and basic education tutoring, parenting skills, legal, medical and dental care, general health education, budgeting, credit restoration, housing assistance, income support, and social activities.

Detoxification Services

Detoxification services for people struggling with addiction include: evaluation, elimination of the addictive substance or the dependency factors from the system—while keeping the health risks from substance withdrawal to a minimum, and support and efforts to motivate people to seek on-going treatment.

Residential Services

A variety of 24-hour residential programs, with various levels of structure, professional support, and access to other specialized services (e.g., medical care), are available to assist people in their recovery. Services may be short- or long-term and range from intensive treatment to life skills acquisition and integration.

Intervention and Other Treatment-related Services

Case Management/Service Coordination

Individuals in treatment for drug and alcohol abuse or addiction often are involved with a number of systems (for example, education, physical health, insurance, government, juvenile justice, or criminal justice) that must be coordinated to achieve best results.

Case management/service coordination helps people access the needed systems and ensures that the providers of service function in a coordinated manner.

Recovery Supports

Non-clinical services that assist individuals and families to recover from substance use disorders. These services complement the focus of treatment, outreach, engagement and other strategies and interventions to assist people in recovery in gaining the skills and resources needed to initiate, maintain, and sustain long-term recovery.

Prevention Services

Informational and educational programs on the dangers of substance use and abuse, as well as services to help individuals who have use and/or abuse concerns, are offered in the schools and community.
