

Whose Tracks Are These? at South Park

What kinds of animals live in South Park? Sometimes you may not see an animal, but you can tell where it lives by the signs it leaves behind. One sign animals leave behind is its tracks. Different types of animals can leave different tracks.

Match the animals that live in South Park to the track they would leave behind.

COYOTE

BEAR

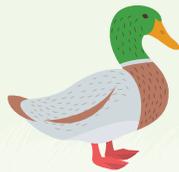

RACCOON

BISON

TURKEY

DUCK

PARK RANGER

When an animal walks on soft ground, such as snow or mud, its feet press into the ground like a stamp and leave behind what we call a "track." Animal tracks can tell you a lot about the animals that live around you. Can you find tracks from an animal that only comes out at night? What can the tracks tell you about where the animals like to live? Keep an eye out for the different tracks you might find, and see if you can identify them!
